CARRIED BATS

For the Athletics, Says Young Tramp, about "Bull" Smith.

The feats of "Bull" Smith while he was in the big leagues have been told and re-told by his many admirers in this city, but yesterday there was a stranger in the city who told a new one on Smith. The stranger was Joe Howell, the youthful tramp from Philadelphia, who has been taken care of by the police here for the last few days. Howell hails from Philadelphia and the conversation around police station yesterday drifted to baseball. "You have seen all the big league players," said the chief. "Do you remember 'Bull' Smith?" "Do I? Well, I should say I do. He's 'de guy what used to carry bats for the Athletics. I got it in for dat guy, cause I'd got dat job if he hadn't come along," replied the boy. The joke was on "Bull" and his friends have been joking him since, and Smith is kept busy proving that he never was with the Athletic team.

The Short Cut to Market

Railroads spend millions yearly straightening curves and making short cuts. It pays in net earnings. National manufacturers can shorten the curves between them and the local market by appealing through the best medium to reach the market—the daily newspapers.

The merchants of this town will tell you that their advertising in daily newspapers like THE DAILY TELEGRAM bring direct returns day by day. Newspaper advertising is an intimate daily part of the people's lives. It reaches them when they are in the mood for buying.

The modern short cut to market for a nationally advertised product is through a co-operative campaign in the daily newspapers between merchant and manufacturer.

If you are interested write the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association.
